Romney Warns Of Tragic Mistakes'

George Romney, secretary of the Utah State Board of Education, warned BYU students at a special national assembly that the United States has made the mistake of carrying a good thing too far.

Romney said the country tried to carry the successful policy of winning Communism from Europe to Southeast Asia. In 1961, "we made the mistake thinking we could do for others what they should have done for themselves."

Romney termed the Vietnam War the most tragic mistake in our history and said the United States has lost to Russia and China in the Vietnam war.

"alienated other nations which were determined not to be dominated by the Communist nations."

Romney also declared that the involvement of American troops in a foreign war without a declaration of war was unconstitutional.

Secretary Romney then urged his listeners to not carry a good thing too far at home, too.

He labeled as America's chief concern the decay of the central cities and the explosive threat of concentrations of the poor and minorities in the city centers surrounded by the rich in suburbs.

"By a unique circumstance," he added, "the money has all flowed to Washington but the trouble was in the cities. The federal government then tried to take over for people what they should do for themselves at the local level and it didn't work."

He called for decentralization because "there is no special wisdom in Washington. That is what the new federalism is all about," he concluded.

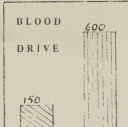

Although the assembly was a Devotional assembly, Romney's remarks were frequently punctuated by applause from the students gathered in the Smith Fieldhouse.

The secretary included faith and an understanding of the divine purpose of the Constitution as essential if the United States is to cope with its internal problems.

He counseled that violence was not the answer to these problems. If the present course of the nation away from faith continues, he warned, the nation is in danger of being destroyed by barbarism from within, as Macaulay, the British historian, had predicted in the last century.

Romney's wife, Lenore, introduced at the assembly by President Wilkinson as "the next Senator from Michigan," spoke at a seminar on education at 2 p.m.

Y Supreme Court To Decide Election

President Ernest L. Wilkinson announced last night that he is turning the investigation concerning the ASBYU presidential election back to the ASBYU Supreme Court.

Wilkinson has been considering the election since Wednesday of last week, but decided that "it is best that students handle their own election," according to informed sources.

Steve Gulbrandson, chief justice of the court, indicated that the justices will meet tomorrow and decide exactly how the investigation will be handled.

"All aspects of the election will be under consideration," stressed Gulbrandson.

All items previously considered by the court are closed and will not be reconsidered, according to Gulbrandson.

Latin Week

Latin American Week continues today with movies in the Wilkinson Reception Center from noon 1 p.m., and a display of arts and crafts.

Tickets are still available for the Noche Latina concert Thursday night. Tickets can be purchased from the Latin American Studies Office, 113 Faculty Office Bldg.

Non-Mormons In Happy Valley

By GEORGE KING
First of a two-part series

An Orem elementary student, daughter of a local Lutheran minister, is surrounded at recess and subjected to chants and catcalls which include the fact that she is not a Mormon. The child comes home repeatedly hurt and upset. The minister finds it necessary to make a visit to a school principal. The chants subsequently cease.

In another school in Utah County the children are taught to pray together with folded arms. The young daughter in an Episcopal family, who has learned to pray with her hands cupped, refuses to comply. The teacher tries to force the matter and the parents finally have to intervene.

On the junior high school level, the son of a local Baptist minister refuses to dance during the gym hour because it is against his religious beliefs. The gym teacher responds by telling him that he will "get in that gym and dance—or else." The boy reacts by losing himself among the other students and leaving through the back door of the building, to arrive home frustrated and upset.

One Sunday afternoon at 5 p.m. about a year ago, a bullet crashes through the walls of the east wing of the Sister's quarters which adjoin the Saint Francis Catholic School, about 50 feet away from a Sister who was walking in the direction of the shot.

"I was new here then," the radiant little lady explains as she recalls the incident, "and I didn't want to think that it was because of religion, but then, sometimes, I wonder."

One week later, in the middle of the night, the Sisters receive a bomb threat. The caller informs them that a bomb is about to "blow up your whole joint." The Sister who answered the phone, noting for her wit, responds by thinking the caller for his concern.

Don't Laugh

"Don't laugh at me lady," he responds, "we're going to blow the whole——bunch of you right to Hell."

"Well," the Sister replies, still unalarmed, "see you there." When a thorough inspection of the premises is made by the Provo police, no bomb is found and the Sisters are completely safe, but the effects of the threat, as well as the bullet hole itself, still remain.

Bullet holes also mar the beauty of the stained glass windows in Springville's Presbyterian Church. The expensive glass has been replaced to no avail. Somehow the holes, usually caused by B-B guns, and once by a .22, have a way of reappearing.

The fact that these incidents and many more of the same type occurred in Utah County during the past year would probably surprise, and even shock many members of the predominant LDS faith who feel no animosity exists between the various religions of the community and aren't aware that such things even happen.

"I think there is a very good feeling among people of all

The Daily Universe OPINION

Audiences Are Inconsiderate

Having reviewed the BYU production of "The Pilgrim's Progress," it seems only fitting to review the audience, in this instance Saturday night's audience.

As with most BYU audiences, the opera crowd Saturday night was noisy, talkative and generally inconsiderate of others.

A particular problem in the de Jong Concert Hall is the unwillingness of patrons to believe that they can have a clear view of the stage if they would only sit still and sit back in their seats. Admittedly, the interesting stage set for "The Pilgrim's Progress" included a run-off ramp stage right, a ramp that was unseen from the balcony seats. However, very little action was involved on the ramp and the voices still could be heard. This did not preclude the surge forward as people just "had" to see what was happening, or what they thought might be happening whenever the ramp was put to use.

Distracting

Other action which proved distracting and detracting to the evening's enjoyment included people who had to discuss what was going on; people who were leaning forward for most of the performance—thereby obscuring the view for many behind them—and the young lady who felt that the theater was the time and the place to caress her date's neck and give him a back rub.

There was no intermission during the opera, so apparently it was a great strain for people to sit still for the entire production and fidgeting became the order of the day.

Live theater audiences are bad, but those attending the movies are even more of an undisciplined mob.

What a joy to attend "The Bridge on the River Kwai" and have some members of the audience, in full voice, over Alec Guinness to detonate the bridge. Or what about attending "Finian's Rainbow" and have someone singing—out loud—along with the stars.

Strange Animal

The BYU theater goer is a strange animal in that he does not attend the theater merely to witness a performance, live or on film, but with a consuming desire to communicate—not only in empathy with the artists but vocally with his fellows. The theater goer reveals this desire to be recognized by letting as many people as possible know of his presence through continual chattering, fidgeting and general noise-making. The trouble is, his fellow theater goers are also seeking identity, and the resultant cacophony, a negating effect on the individual enterprise, sometimes completely drowns out the paid performers.

Some theater goers can be generous to a fault in that they are willing to share their knowledge of the plot unfolding before everyone. Sometimes they will even condescend to provide a running commentary with the additional bonus of explaining what will next unfold, or even the next line or two to be uttered by the hero.

Enjoys A Laugh

Then again, some theater goers like a laugh, but when they laugh it is not necessarily out of enjoyment of a particular amusing incident, but to intimate to everyone that they "got the point." Also they enjoy a laugh at the cost of finding humor in the most serious moments of drama. Of course, when this happens, the remainder of the audience will join in with nervous titters in case they missed something they should have laughed at.

Admittedly, this is a very negative viewpoint, but attending the theater at BYU can be a very frustrating experience, especially if one is attending to see or hear the performance and not just visit with one's friends.

A university is a place of learning, and it can be hoped that as theater goers we can also learn to be attentive, considerate audiences.

Letters to the editor

THANK GOODNESS

Editor

Today on a news report I heard of a young college student in Santa Barbara, Calif. being shot to death by radical snipers for helping out at a bank fire started by the same radicals. This incident of campus disorder and rioting struck me a lot harder than any of the previous reports of disorders. I guess because of the fact that in this engagement not only were material objects destroyed but an actual human life was needlessly taken.

This year has seen BYU challenged from both outside and inside for change and a relaxation of the controls governing the University. We have heard arguments both pro and con including numerous within this paper as to what this University should or should not do.

I will admit that I have not always agreed on every policy and action the University has taken and I don't believe I would classify myself among the "BYU-LOVE IT OR LEAVE IT" group because I believe a number of good changes have come and will continue to come from within the university itself. The news report, however, made me realize how lucky we are here at BYU; First, that we have leaders wise enough not to allow radical elements on this campus. I do not mean moderates and liberals but persons whose goal and desire it is to destroy and cause chaos rather than to create and improve and second, that we as students, faculty and administration have enough sense to not become instigators nor contributors to the kind of violence and destruction that can be seen on so many campuses today.

FREE GOVERNMENT?

Editor:

Perhaps this election has finally shown student government as the true face it really is. Perhaps one can imagine President Nixon being disqualified at the last election because someone in "beautiful downtown" Provo campaigned too close to the polls. Or perhaps one can imagine President Johnson and his cabinet deciding to disqualify candidate Nixon and then sending notices to all polling booths that no one is allowed to vote for Nixon.

Perhaps one might imagine President Johnson using the FBI and Secret Police to thoroughly investigate all candidates in order to see that all have impeccable moral backgrounds. And, perhaps, if one can imagine all these things, then, perhaps, he has a good idea of the manner in which a police state dictatorship is operated.

And E Slips

Four Weeks To Make Up Low Grades

The pressure is on. By last week, over 8,000 students had received D and E slips in 12,000 classes. With less than four weeks of classes remaining, many students will be hard pressed to bring up their grades.

To save a large investment and facilitate an earlier graduation rate, students who have difficulties can apply for help at the BYU Tutoring Service. All one has to do is go to A-202 Jesse Hall, or call Ext. 3316, and in 1½ minutes he has a qualified tutor to help him in any area.

Students may also gain valuable assistance from the Counseling Center. They are invited to visit the Academic Standards Office, 202 Smoot Administration Building, to obtain tools and study aids, time budgeting guides and current information about their academic status.

The student numbers listed below indicate those whose D and E midsemester reports were not favorable due to insufficient progress. These reports should be picked up immediately at the Academic Standards Office, B-202 JB.

udent from the East way, "Mormons live in art wherever they are. ew York they isolate and so here it is only t they should isolate ho choose not to join h are just not part of It's as simple as that." on-Mormons were point out that they that much of the which they felt was. "Most people here lived anywhere outside a Catholic household "they've hardly even Mormon felt alone been friends on one. No wonder they think we're so different."

Try To Be Friendly
A young Episcopalian girl, who has lived here for almost two years, says, "Most Mormons don't mean to leave us out. They try to be friendly. It's just that all they have time for is their family and church obligations. By the time the average young LDS student-father takes care of his schoolwork, his two part-time jobs, his priesthood, Sunday School and Mutual obligations, and all of the things he's supposed to fix around the house, it's a wonder he has time to sleep. When is he supposed to find time to join the Elks?"

Non-Mormons also point out that they are sometimes offended by things which LDS church members take for granted as part of their culture. The habit most Mormons have of referring to their religion as "The Church" for instance, or that of calling everyone "Brother and Sister."

"These things don't have the same signification for us," one Non-Mormon explained.

Some are also offended by the feeling that this valley is "some sort of a promised land." "It's almost as if this is supposed to be the Mormon Mecca and everyone should rejoice about being here," a young graduate candidate states.

"I got so tired of hearing people tell me how lucky I am to be in God's country," says an English lady of 40, widow of an active Mormon Air Force Pilot who was shot down in Vietnam a few months ago. "Sometimes I could just scream that I don't think this is necessarily God's country and I'm really not all that happy to be here."

Local non-Mormons also speak of what the Episcopalian minister refers to as "a constant overt or covert attempt at conversion."

The Baptist minister notes, "As long as a Mormon is working towards converting you, he will be your true friend, but the moment he finds you're not interested, he'll drop you like a hot potato."

One person refers to this as "one-way communication" and adds that he has the feeling that Mormons don't want to discuss but rather "to make me listen and believe."

Another minister calls it a "we're-right-and-you're-wrong attitude" and adds that he has often felt "tolerated rather than accepted."

The local Catholic Father states that while he has been often invited to attend BYU functions, he hesitates to do so because, "I feel we're being used as window dressing."

Many others expressed frustration because they felt that few Mormons seem "genuinely interested" in learning and appreciating their beliefs.

Others resent what they consider to be an invasion of their Constitutional rights. One mother spoke of statements made in public schools that "just couldn't happen anywhere else," and she adds, "Sometimes you feel like this is just not part of the USA, like it's an island all by itself."

The Baptist minister referred to "the religious practice" many local teachers have of making non-Mormons stand and identify themselves at the beginning of each year. "That way the kid is marked right from the start," he said.

The Episcopalian minister, also irritated by this practice, states that he will "file civil suit if necessary" to stop this "utter ignoral of Constitutional rights."

The Catholic Father adds, "Here religion seems to be an issue even with the school children."

'Mural Track Meet Tomorrow

The Intramural Men's Track Meet events scheduled for Monday obviously had to be cancelled but tomorrow's events will take place as scheduled.

Monday's events will be rescheduled for a future time. The Women's Track Meet originally scheduled for April 22 will be held on May 6 at the BYU Stadium. Entries are still being accepted in 112 RPE.

Entries are also being accepted for the women's golf tournament to be held during the first week in May.

New Record

Dave Powell of Olympus High racked up 7479 in the all-around to break former BYU great Neil Roberts' record of 7343 at the BYU Invitational Friday and Saturday at Cougar Stadium.

Roberts, who had set the old mark as a senior in 1963, was present to offer congratulations to Powell.

Powell assured himself the new mark with a sensational .49.5 clocking in the 440, a new meet record.

Huge Cougar At Hinckley

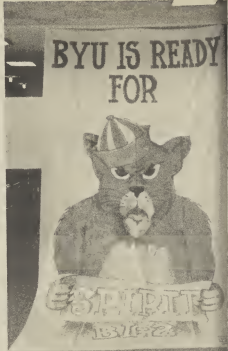

A huge Cougar canvas is the latest innovation to welcome visiting athletic teams to the BYU campus.

Originator of the 30'x15' giant Cougar is the left wing, second floor of Hinckley Hall. (BL-2) Errol Jackson, floor representative, said the canvas will be presented to Hinckley Hall president Brent Stromberg, and will be given as a challenge to other residence halls on the BYU campus to increase the spirit of the Y.

The huge Cougar will be placed on the west end of Hinckley Hall with the name of the visiting school for that week inserted in the space between the big cat's paws.

Putting in hours of work to complete the large painting were BL-2 floor members Gordon Moore, Ty Shuman and Doug May. Dennis Baird, intramural vice-president of the floor, said that one reason they did the painting was to promote a spirit of competition between all the residence halls. They want to see other halls do something to promote athletics at BYU.

Baird added that this meant not only intercollegiate sports, but intramural sports as well.

Supremacy Nears End

As the gun lap is sounded in the men's intramural supremacy races, many of the champions have been tentatively crowned while the club race still waxes hot and heavy.

Leading the race in the First Stake is the 51st ward with 179 points. Tops in the second Stake is 307 for the 22nd ward. The second highest total in the stakes division belongs to the 24th ward of the third stake with 397.

Top dog in the fourth Stake is the 19th ward with 149 tallies while the leader in the fifth Stake is the 48th ward with 191.

Leading the sixth Stake is the 60th ward with 151 points. 70th ward appears destined for the seventh Stake championship as the lead with 268 counters.

The 67th ward of the first Stake has earned 649 points, far the largest total of anyone in the division.

Ninth Stake supremacy are probably destined to the 73rd ward while the 28th ward, leading with 139 tallies, is 15th ward, close behind.

Leading all of Helam's the races in that division with 229. Next is DL-3 with 142, CL-2 with 105. In the Desert Hills run-down goes like this: U-5, 122, S-2, 73; and V. Samuel Hall and currently in the hottest of the supremacy races. S. leading with 769 points is close with 608 counters.

The independent races is led by the Men's 502 points. It would as they have won their division's nearest rival has 12.

Universe Sports Writer

The BYU women's track team placed fourth in the Davis Invitational at the University of Calif. at Davis last Saturday.

Even without two of their top performers three meet records were set by the BYU girls. Delone Rowley set records in the 100 and 220-yard dashes in 11.8 and 27.4 seconds. Nancy Romans also set a meet record in the 100-meter hurdles in 17.1 seconds, and placed third in the 80-yard high hurdles.

Linda Hamilton placed second in the 100-yard dash in 12.3 seconds and placed sixth in the 440-yard dash.

In the 880-yard relay Carolyn Condole placed third by winning the first heat in 2:35.4.

In the 4400-yard relay team of Linda Hamilton, Nancy Romans, Jana Moss and Delone Rowley placed second in 53.7, two-tenths of a second behind San Jose State, which set a meet record of 53.5.

Others placing were Jana Moss, fourth in the 200-meter low hurdles and fifth in the long jump, Jacki Pitts, fifth in the javelin, Lee Cox sixth in the discus, and Margaret Padfield, Jacki Pitts, Elaine Davis and Jana Moss placed fourth in the 880-yard Medley relay.

Team scores were Chico State 107, San Jose State 100, Humboldt State 77, BYU 75, California State at Hayward 53, University of California at Davis 37 and University of Nevada 23.

Dr. Staley Relates His System To Field

By RENEE COVINGTON
Universe Staff Writer

"I am a doctor of sociology because of my open-systems theory. I feel it my basic task to relate this to the field of sociology."

John S. Staley, professor at BYU for the past two-and-a-half years, applies his open-system theory to programming the community and accelerating the individual. Says Dr. Staley, "Any major organization can be programmed for change. Sociology is the organization structure for renewal."

This confidently active professor has shown the validity of his convictions through many successful trials. He literally reorganized a southern Pennsylvania coal town.

"Before our change took place, the happiest man in the town was the undertaker. Everyone grew up and moved away and the community still thought, 'All is well in Zion.' The median age of the population was 52," Dr. Staley states.

This man took an inventory of the whole town and presented it to the people. At first the community wouldn't accept it. The mayor of the town publicly announced the document to be false.

But after about six months the once hopeless coal town saw the truth in it and the reorganization program was allowed to take action. Adds Dr. Staley, "I thought then if we can get this one started, we can get any town started."

Through the years, John Staley has devoted his time to countless organizations concerned with helping the needy. During 1967 and 1968, he lived in the ghettos of Manchester. He served as an advocate of the less fortunate's needs and represented their interests. He has been a consultant for the United Steelworkers of America for community development and a representative to the President's Poverty Board.

He has testified to the senate subcommittee on housing and constructed a racial-intellectual study in Brazil. He organized the Ten-County Poverty Study and is now co-director of the Utah Institution for Human Potential. And still Dr. Staley declares, "My life is just beginning!"

Mary Staley, the professor's wife, is presently serving as director of the Utah Institution for Human Potential and has had a great influence in Dr. Staley's life.

20 Arrests

By ROGER H. AYLWORTH
Universe Staff Writer

Snow fell silently as night closed in over the Utah Valley; while in the basement of the Smoot Administration Bldg., elements of BYU Security and Provo Police assembled prior to the night's narcotics arrests.

Detective Ron West of Security was in charge of the operation as two unmarked cars moved out in hopes of capturing two of Provo's biggest drug peddlers.

Scenes like this are becoming more and more common in this area. While on this particular evening the officer's efforts proved fruitless, many other times the authorities have found their quarry.

According to West, BYU Security has made over 20 arrests on narcotics charges in the past two months and Provo police claim eight or ten to their credit. Both forces agree the problem is on the upswing and it starts at a very young age. West says the local kids start on drugs as young as 14.

Further proof of the seriousness of the situation is the amount of drugs confiscated by Security. They have captured almost $2,000 in marijuana. The figure represents what the "grass" would sell for on the illegal market.

Also in an effort to get proof on the local pushers, Security has paid out over $200.00 for speed, LSD, Daron and other illicit pills in undercover operations.

The undercover operations are no joke, either. An undercover agent working for Security, who's name must be withheld for his safety, has reported there are people in this area who are "gunning" for him.

Detective West states one of the biggest problems from an enforcement angle is the number of the populace is not aware of the severity of the situation.

A local organization for rehabilitation of the drug estimates that 30 per cent of students at BYU have had exposure to drugs either here or home.

THE SEARCH

CAROL LYNN PEARSON

In her first volume of poetry, Beginnings, Carol Lynn Pearson introduced us to an exciting, new talent and a sensitive insight into the human condition. The Search is without doubt an excellent companion to that first volume.

We find here not only an understanding of man in a general sense, but also a disquieting insight into the relationship of man to man and man to God. Accompanied by more sensitive sketches by Traci Smith, The Search will make a delightful gift for Mother's Day. Carol Lynn will be in the BYU Bookstore Thursday, the 30th of April, to autograph copies of her book. Free gift-wrapping and mothers will be available.

WANT TO QUIT RENTING? WANT TO BUY?

Conditions depressing, but down payment too high? Wheelwrights can help you if you're willing to try.

We'll split the down payment, half now and half in the fall. When you move in you'll be the envy of them all. Think of it!!!!

A beautiful 2-bedroom fully furnished Mobile Home, brand new and yours.

Then each payment is accumulating equity, instead of worthless rent receipts. If you are paying over $75.00 per month rent we can solve your housing problem.
